

A unique service to produce renewable energy from your used cooking oil

■ PDM Group is the UK's leading collector and recycler of food wastes - servicing the production, retail and hospitality sectors nationwide. The range of recycling services has now been extended to include used cooking oils and fats.

■ We provide a fully-integrated collection, processing and end-product application service; used cooking oils are processed into bio-fuels either for bio-diesel production or renewable power generation in our own generating stations.

■ Environmental pressure is being brought to bear on the disposal of waste oils and fats through the controlled waste regulations; users of oil have a duty of care to ensure the product is passed to an authorised collector. The days of being able to hand used oil from out the back of a restaurant to a 'man in a white van' are now a thing of the past.

- Our collection service is fully compliant with Waste Management legislation, providing a fully traceable audit trail from collection through to end-product use.
- All oils and fats collected from catering establishments by PDM Group are used for the production of renewable bio-fuels.
